Dear Dr. Rachel Harrison,

I am Yanwar Pribadi, a lecturer at IAIN "Sultan Maulana Hasanuddin" Banten, Indonesia. Attached is my paper with the hope that it can be published in South East Asia Research.

I am looking forward to your kind reply.

With kind regards,
Yanwar Pribadi

Dear Yanwar,
Thank you for your email and for your paper submitted to SEAR on 23 July 2013. i have now had a chance to read it and am about to put it into the peer review process. This normally takes 6-8 weeks though it can sometimes take longer. I would therefore suggest that if you have not heard from me by the first week of October that you are welcome to contact me for an update.
With warm regards
Rachel

Dear Yanwar,
Apologies that you have had rather a long wait. The reason for this is largely because I sought the advice of 3 reviewers instead of 2 (although the attached report refers only to 2 reports) so that one reviewer could offer detailed advice on how your paper can be reshaped for publication. I attach the reviews here together with notes for authors and I do hope that you will consider the suggested revisions and resubmit the paper in due course. SEAR currently has a publication turn around time of 24 months and because you submitted your paper initially in July it means we would look to publish in June or September 2015. That should give you plenty of time to make the revisions to the piece for resubmission.
With warm regards
Rachel

Dear Rachel,

Attached is my revised paper. But, since I followed the readers' suggestions and remarks, I added new data and analysis and they made my paper longer (in words). I hope it won't be a problem.

Please let me know about any progress regarding my paper.

Best regards,
Yanwar

Dear Yanwar,
I have now had a chance to look at your revised paper for SEAR. We can find a slot to publish it in either June or September 2015 but I must ask you to reduce the length drastically as it currently runs to 15K words and our absolutely maximum is 8K. We will not be in a position to go ahead with publication if you cannot keep to this word limit. I know this is sometimes difficult but I would be very grateful to have copy from you at the correct length by March 2015 for publication in June.
I also attach our notes for authors for further preparation of your manuscript.
With best regards
Rachel

Dear Yanwar,
Just to reiterate my thanks for the revised and shortened version of your paper, which is now scheduled for publication in the September 2015 issue of the journal. I will be writing to you again shortly if I have any editorial queries.
With warm regards and thanks for your patience in this rather lengthy process,
Rachel

Dear Yanwar,
I have now edited your paper in preparation for publication in the September 2015 volume of SEAR. I very much enjoyed the paper and have only one editorial query - there does not seem to be a bibliography with the paper. Could you please see the attached version and add the list of references?
With thanks

Dear Dr Pribadi

Re: The klebun, the kiai and the blater…

This is to let you know that I have received the final version of the above paper from Rachel Harrison as fully accepted for publication in South East Asia Research. We are scheduling it for the September 2015 issue, which is now going into production, and we shall send you proofs for checking before publication.

In the meantime, you may hear from the copy editor, Anne Brookes, if any queries arise at the sub-editing stage.

With best regards,

John Edmondson

SEAR - proof

To: yanwarpribadi@gmail.com

Dear Dr Yanwar Pribadi

Please find attached a pdf of the proof of your paper for South East Asia Research. I would be grateful if you would print this out and read it. Could you please let me have any corrections no later than 24 August. Even if you have no corrections, please let me know as confirmation that you have seen the proof.

You can e-mail me a note of the corrections, a scan of a marked hard copy or a marked pdf using Adobe - whichever is most convenient for you.

If you mark corrections on a hard copy of the proof, please be sure to write clearly. Please note that, unless the fault is at our end or the change is essential, we can accept only minor corrections at this stage. The proof will also be read in-house for typesetting errors.

On publication of your paper in SEAR, we shall send you a copy of the issue and a pdf of the published version of your paper.

With thanks and best regards,

John Edmondson

SEAR - proof

Yanwar Pribadi <yanwarpribadi@gmail.com> 11 August 2015 at 10:17
To: John Edmondson <jedmondson@ippublishing.com>

Dear Mr. Edmondson,

Thank you very much for the proof of my paper. I read it three times and only see two very minor mistakes. The first is in p. 4 under the section 'Sources of authority', line 3...is Rokib, a 54-yearold...(it lacks a space between 'year' and 'old'). The second is in p. 13, line 21...their family in rite-ofpassage ceremonies...(it lacks a space between 'of' and 'passage'). Those are the only corrections I have seen.

On publication of my paper, coincidentally I'm going to London (precisely to SOAS) in the end of September, and so perhaps I can just take the copy from your office if possible. Therefore, you don't have to send it to my home address, but certainly you can send a pdf of the published version to my e-mail. What do you think about that?

Warmest regards,
Yanwar

Dear Yanwar

Thank you for your prompt response – corrections safely received.

Re your copy of the issue, that sounds like a good idea. The office here is only about ten minutes' walk from SOAS. We are running a bit late but I am hoping that printed copies will be available in late September (if not, it will be early October). (I can alternatively post it to your London address if that is easier.)

With best regards,

John

Dear Yanwar

I am mailing to you a copy of the September issue of South East Asia Research, which contains your article. I hope you will be pleased with the way it looks. In the meantime, I attach a pdf of the published version of the article.

The article has been published online at http://www.ingentaconnect.com/content/ip/sear.

If your institution does not currently subscribe to SEAR, perhaps you would kindly encourage it to do so? There is a library recommendation form on our Website (www.ippublishing.com).

Finally, I am attaching some suggestions for increasing the exposure of your paper (this document is also available on our Website).

With many thanks for your contribution and best regards,

John
