Dear Dr. Qurtubi,

My name is Maja Bozicevic from IntechOpen, the world's leading Science, Technology and Medicine Open Access book publisher.

We came across your research and thought that you would be interested in learning more about relevant peer reviewed Open Access scientific literature available to read, share and download completely for free on the IntechOpen platform.

Our founder understood the need for freely accessible and open research.

"Back when I was a PhD student of Robotics in Vienna, I found it difficult to easily access the academic research I needed. Inspired by this need, and together with peers, we decided to create a new digital platform where researchers like ourselves could find critical information more easily and for free. Our first publications went online in 2004 and thus the IntechOpen publishing platform was born - built by scientists for scientists."

Alex Lazinica
Founder & Executive Chairman, IntechOpen

Today, with over 16 years of experience and expertise, 5,900 OA books published, and a community of over 145,000 satisfied scientists globally, we have established relationships with leading research and funding organizations such as NASA, Wellcome Trust, the European Commission.

Dear Dr. Qurtubi,

I hope you are doing well.

Please allow me to inform you that the Editor has reviewed your full chapter and wrote the following comments/suggestions:

The chapter have a clear aligned format and structure. It well written and easy to read. No major grammatical issues or errors. The Abstract have an aim but nowhere in the chapter this is missing but all the other related components are stated in this section. The Introduction - Recent citations were used and well-written. No clear theoretical framework but motivation is discussed. no research questions stated but hypotheses were computed in the Results section of the chapter (empirical). The Methodology is appropriate for the quantitative design. Instruments were computed and reliability of each item was highly reliable. The Results data is presented, and Discussion section is well-written and integrated with recent citations to substantiate the results. A major issue is the Conclusion fo the Chapter- what is the educational contribution of the research -it is theory, policy, practice or methodology? Any suggestions or recommendations for future research. The Reference must be aligned of the APA referencing style- some references do not have a DOI or URL link. In some references no indication of specific page numbers, or volume and DOI is missing.

Congratulations on well-structured and easy to read chapter. Only after minor revisions, then the chapter will be published.
