The hypothesis testing explain that explain that N.Sig <0.05 so the null hypothesis (Ho) is rejected. It means both of variable students' self confidence and students' Public speaking have a significance correlation. The Null hypothesis indicates that, "There is no significant relationship between students' self-confidence and their speaking ability". The Researcher also find out the result of r calculated is 351. Based on table of the interpretation r value (table 3.3), the result of calculated (351) resided between 0.21 to 0.40 that means the correlation is weak. So in another result for this research are if the students have high self confidence that they will got high score in speaking test arid if the students have low self confidence that they will got low score in speaking test.
