

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

In this section, the researcher draws several conclusions. We As mentioned in the first chapter of this paper, the aim of this is to find out how appropriate the Bupin Scanner application is for teaching listening in grade twelve and the students responses using bupin in listening comprehension. Here, the researcher wants to conclude data obtained in the previous chapter. Researchers have shown that some bupin scanner applications have many benefits for learning. listening because this Bupin application is easy to use, the learning method is not monotonous, it has clear audio, and it makes it easier for students to learn listening comprehension and motivates them.

Finally, in relation to the data analyzed by The researcher came to the conclusion that the Bupin scanner application served as a medium. listening and learning for students. there are several aspects in learning listening so that students can understand listening well, identifying meaning, different sounds of speakers, understanding the vocabulary, and grammar. The researcher concludes that listening and learning using Bupin is also appropriate for twelfth grade because most students answered positively to the interview questions. and also has a good influence on listening learning.

B. Suggestions

Following the completion of the study, the researcher will suggest teacher ideas for teaching listening comprehension to English teacher, student, and future researcher.

1. Suggestion for English teacher

The researcher suggests that teachers explore other strategies in teaching listening comprehension. Furthermore, the researcher hopes that teachers will never stop providing motivation to students so that they are enthusiastic about learning English, especially listening comprehension.

2. Suggestion for students

Researchers believe that learning English, especially listening comprehension, will never be interesting for students. but because of the method used by the teacher, students enjoy it more and are more interesting. Furthermore, researchers hope that students will remain focused on their learning so they can have a good understanding. In addition, researchers believe that students will be able to understand and enjoy every approach used by teachers in teaching listening comprehension.

3. Suggestion for researcher

The researcher suggest that the next researcher continue their research on this topic by using other English skills, such as reading and writing.

