The value of r_{xy} was 0.807, it's higher than the value of r_t in the significance of 5% in which $0.807 > 0.349$. Moreover, the significance of t contribution revealed that the result was significant with the value of t_{count} was 7.730. The value is higher than the value of t_{table} at the level of significance 0.05, in which $7.730 > 2.036$. Hence, the alternative hypothesis (H_a) is accepted and null hypothesis (H_0) is rejected.
