

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

This chapter is aimed to state the result of the analysis of the study. It includes both conclusion and suggestion.

A. Conclusions

After obtaining the data, the writer makes a conclusion in this chapter to clarify and answer the research question. The conclusion of this study as follow:

1. The first research question in this study is what kind of the types of presupposition do happen to the main characters of "Frozen Movie". In the "Frozen Movie" there were 50 utterances there were detected presupposition. Those utterances classified into six presupposition those are existential presupposition, factive presupposition, non factive presupposition, lexical presupposition, structural presupposition, and counterfactual presupposition. From 50 utterances were found there are 15 utterances of existential presupposition, 4 utterances of factive presupposition, 2 utterances of non factive presupposition, 9 utterances of lexical presupposition, 17 utterances of structural presupposition, and 3 utterances of counterfactual presupposition. It can be concluded that the answer of the first research question is the kind of presupposition because it has a greater amount of the data.
2. The second research question on this study is how is the interpretation meaning that used in the main characters in the frozen movie script ? Here, to know the interpretation meaning of each presupposition in Frozen Movie the writer watching the movie from the beginning until the end of the movie, she read and analyze the script of the movie, then she relates to the situation and context that occurs in the storyline. Therefor she conclude that every presupposition produce it has meaning that want to send by speaker to listener, every presupposition it can depend on the condition or the situation when the speaker said the utterance.

B. Suggestions

After analyzing the data and discussing the result, the writer provides several suggestions for the reader, English Department Student, and future researcher.

1. For the reader

The writer hopes this research could improve the reader's knowledge about presupposition. And after reading this research, the reader would understand that every utterance that is produced by people sometimes has implicit meaning that would be sent to the listener.

2. For English Department Students

The writer hopes this research could be one of the references in studying presupposition, especially to give more understanding about presupposition as one part of pragmatic study in the linguistics field.

3. For the future writer

The writer hopes that in the future there will be other researchers who will conduct the same topic to complete this research, although in a different field. And she hopes this research could be one of the references for his research.
