Subject: South East Asia Research book review invitation

To: Yanwar Pribadi &lt;yanwarpribadi@gmail.com&gt;

Dear Professor Pribadi

The 2018 and 2019 Indonesian Elections: Identity Politics and Regional Perspectives, Edited by Leonard C.Sebastian, Alexander R. ArifiantoRising Islamic Conservatism in Indonesia: Islamic Groups and Identity Politics, Edited by Leonard C. Sebastian,Syafiq Hasyim, Alexander R. Arifianto

I hope this email finds you well. The reviews editor of South East Asia Research asked me to contact you to see if you would be interested in reviewing either or both of these two edited volumes from Routledge on Indonesian identity politics. We usually allow about three months for book reviews, and suggest a length of between 900 and 2000 words, although this is flexible, especially if taking on more than one book.

I can request either e-books or the hard copy. If you would prefer the latter, please let me know your address (the publishers may also require a phone number if using couriers).

I hope very much that you can accept this invitation, but please let me know if not, and please suggest someone else suitable as a reviewer, if you can.

Best wishes

Rowan

Dear Dr Pease,

Thank you very much for your email.

I would be very happy to review the two edited volumes. I have a question though.

When are exactly the deadlines for both reviews? I assume that they will be in two different issues of SEAR, so the deadlines will be varied.

I would prefer the hard copy. So, please send them to:

Dear Yanwar,

Thank you very much. I will order the books. As I said in my invitation, we usually allow three months, but that has been hard to enforce recently as it can take so long for books to arrive during the pandemic. The deadline for inclusion in our June issue would be April 20th, for September issue, July 20th and for December issue it would be October 20. However, I publish them online soon after arrival. How about we space them two issues apart, say one by April 20th, one by October 20th?

If when you receive them you feel that they would be suitably reviewed as a pair, that is also possible.

Best wishes

Rowan

Dear Rowan,

That would be great. So, one deadline is 20 April (perhaps the 2018 and 2019 Indonesian Elections), and the other one is 20 October (perhaps Rising Islamic Conservatism in Indonesia). I think it would be best for me to review them not as a pair, but as two separate manuscripts.

With best wishes,

Yanwar

Dear Yanwar,

The reviews editor asked me to give this a light copy edit, but I thought I should run my changes past you. They are mainly to remove a few excess words and some repetition. There was one long sentence that I didn't quite understand. Once that's clarified, and if you're happy with the other changes, I'll send it for typesetting.

Best wishes

Thank you Yanwar. I understand your point about practices being the wrong word - I changed 'ways of life' because you then say 'in everyday life'. Instead, I could shorten the sentence, deleting the bit in square brackets:

As vibrant Islamic ways of life have become increasingly conspicuous [in many Muslims' everyday life], the widespread use of identity politics has been seen to entangle communal piety, religious commodification, Islamic populism and Islamism in Indonesia.

Is that acceptable?

Best wishes

Rowan

I am very sorry, I sent it on to the reviews editor, but he asked me to go through it first to clarify a few things with you and to see if it would be possible to reduce the number of references. I have since been on a week's leave, so there has been a delay. I'll try to get back to you later this week.

Best wishes

Dear Yanwar,

I have been through your review, and have some suggested changes, mostly to remove some repeated phrases and words. I also suggest you remove a few of the initialisms. The editor asked if you could reduce the number of references. I have suggested two that I think are unnecessary, but perhaps you can find others.

Please take a look at my suggestions and let me know if there are any you disagree with, or which you feel have changed your meaning. Once I have the review back I will send it to Ben for a final check through and then on to the publisher.

Many thanks and best wishes,

Rowan Pease
